Paul Solomon Reading #0053- how to cleanse a home

Q-4. Is there a negative being in this one's home, and if there is, what can be done about it? And also indicate whether it is impish or malicious in nature.

A-4. Now that which remains in this particular place is a force field that was left by him who lived here and would be seen that it is not a manifestation of self or the spirit or the poltergeist activity, as might be called, but merely is the negative vibration, the infrared field of this one, the feeling that he would have left, that he would have programmed into that inanimate matter that surrounds the house.

It would be seen that for the raising of these vibrations or for the complete erasing of these vibrations that it would be well to burn incense in this home. Now not the cheap sticks or the joss sticks, as they have been called, but acquire this incense of a very high quality from one of those purveyors to the church supplies; that is, of the best quality of the incense. Allow these to burn and allow the atmosphere, the air and the materials surrounding the home to be permeated with this presence that would be seen as the essence of flame and there will be erased all memory; all atmosphere that this one has produced would be released into the ethers and would leave this home. This is not a malicious aspect, although was in the time that this one was here and we see much of this as having been released and having been neutralized by the positive effects of those now living. Seek to neutralize this, then, by the use of the incense and by the positive vibrations of self. Welcome this one and see him as being released to his own highest good.
