

Attitudes and Emotions (2)

Paul Solomon Reading 0152 - WK - 0030 - GR - 0010 - GR. Atlanta, Georgia, April 25, 1973

Be careful in thy judgment of others, for thou hast been harsh and has been judged to sternly. For those about thee are weaker and have not the strength thou has been given. Then give strength to the weak one; be loving in thy criticisms. Build strength. Build discipline...

... Be aware of the teachings of the Master as he spoke of the Pharisee who looked upon his neighbor and lifted his eyes in prayer and gave thanks to God that he was not like another. Now see that which thou hast been given in this life; see those talents; see that ability to think, to understand. And as you would look upon another who possesses not the ability to so control, to think, to understand, to function, if you would give thanks that you are not like this man, do you not set yourself in judgment upon him, and do you not ask that you would return for a new lifetime without those mental facilities that you would have now?

But understand carefully now, that which thou hast been given has been given to be shared. If the thinking of another be not complete and that which should be, then share that thou has; attempt to teach, to love. Do not condemn another to the status he now has, but see him grow; so shall he respond. How great are thy opportunities. Use that which thou has been given for His purpose.

© 2007 The Paul Solomon Foundation