

The Great White Brotherhood

Now understand in this way, all those on your plane who awaken in the depths of consciousness a feeling, a wondering, a concern for those things of spirit, these understandings of the higher levels, the deeper levels of thinking, have attracted to the self, those of like mind. Now if you would think of the White Brotherhood, as you have chosen to call it, as being a lodge or an order that one might join for purposes of ego, or for purposes of status, then you would fail to understand. But know that all upon your plane who are awakened spiritually and would seek those things of the Divine, would expand from the self an attractive force, a glow that would bring those thoughts, those vibrations, those ideas, those teachings that would satisfy such questions.

Now it would be as the magnet drawing to itself those filings, those shavings of metal, that would be of the nature attractive, then the response that would be brought to the seeker would be according to that question asked, or the wondering within the mind. Then understand as you would question, as you would seek, that which you seek is that which you attract. Then if the seeking would be for the glory within self, if the seeking would be for praise, then would you not attract those spirits, those teachers, who would know within themselves that all I need give this one is flattery and attention, and I would have him at my beck and call.

Then if you would attract a teacher, a spirit, a thought from inner-planes that would say, "You have been this high one, that high one, you are a member of the Great White Brotherhood." Then you have attracted that which you seek. But if yet that which you seek is an understanding of the work of those who some have called the Great White Brotherhood, then you would learn the more.

Then what has been your connection, your concern with this White Brotherhood?

You have been fascinated by the work of those who have given their life blood for the work, for the development of the understanding of the application of those laws, those Laws of Cause and Effect, those Laws of Attraction, that would allow the lifting of the development of understanding a little closer to the God-head.

Now understand that there is much that may be revealed, but these are revealed slowly and carefully as you are able to assimilate, as you are able to apply. And if it would seem that we are limited from this plane in what we may express, and if you would grow hungry that deep and heavy concepts might be brought and might be explained, know that the limitation is not here and not on this plane. For we would feel in this moment that we have a great white sheet that is spread to the corners of your earth, and held high at each corner, yet overflowing with the blessings, with the knowledge that we would seek to allow you to experience. Yet only a trickle is allowed to flow through, for you would seek again and again that the greatness of words might be brought, yet how little there is applied, for there has been spoken from these records sufficient information that if applied, could have altered the course of the history of your world, could have healed your nation, could have changed your lives. Yet what have you done with that which has been given and how many are there who even are aware?

We speak not only of giving these words to others, or recording that which has been brought and distributing, but applying those principles within the self. Then, what is the connection with the White Brotherhood? Those of the Brotherhood who have become the Initiates, have often gathered and passed over here and there, looking for one so hungry, so ready as to apply the self in attempting to understand, in attempting to assimilate that which may be given. And know that where there is the seeker, there is a teacher eager, ready, willing and waiting to give all that he has on this plane; and if we might say thus, where we can find one willing and one who will be still long enough and will give the activity of the thoughts, of the spirits, the consciousness, he will be impressed with the thoughts, with the teachings, that will allow him so to develop that he will understand the work of the Orders.

Then your place has been a seeker and is that of the seeker, yet are there teachers attracted to this place, then give of the time to understanding these records that have been brought. And if you would do nothing more than read or listen to all that has been given, then give of the time, of the consciousness in such a way; for hearing the words of the Masters or taking them in through the eyes, will open the heart, the consciousness to Him who wrote or that teacher who spoke.

And so will He be drawn closer to thee, and so will you come as the funnel, as the focusing glass, that that which is contained here in such great quantity might have an outlet that such blessings might be poured into your world and into those about. Now your contact, your connection with such a Brotherhood is evidenced by your interest and your curiosity here. Yet if you would understand, there cannot be given for the revelation in this manner as to the nature of this work, but you will be led step by step in the developing, in the remembering, if you will follow those instructions that have been given. But where you fail to do so you stop that flow, that understanding, that attunement, and even this night, there was given the instructions for the manner in which you would approach and has not been followed.

Then would you cry forth to those masters who would seek to teach here? You have not given that which we would expect to receive and be open to; yet when you have not prepared yourself to receive. But cleanse the self in such ways as have been prescribed and understand that even such small things as forgetting or discarding the ritual of washing the hands, not making the habit of entering in such a manner, will prevent further instruction from coming. Until you could learn the first step, should we be allowed to teach the second?

Question: Was I a member of the Brotherhood?

Answer: This one has been aware of mystic teachings in many past lifetimes and there are relationships that will be realized in this lifetime, though there are things, there are disciplines concerning the secret brotherhood that may not be spoken through these sources.

That which would come then as contact with the mystic teachers from past lifetimes will come within and there will be the realization of those contacts as are developed on this plane. It might be given that there have been close associations with those who were initiates in this Brotherhood, though this one is not initiate as such.
