Yes, you speak of the great crystal which has often been described - as nearly as can be described in this time - a crystal made partly of lapis stone, and of hexagonal shape with that described as spheres or balls being the containers of magnetics or magnetism. The laws of optics, of light and magnetics focused through crystal being a source of electro-magnetics, or the power, as it were, of lightning focused on earth which could give to the atmosphere the presence of electricity which would require only the use of an antennae here and there to ground this force and make it available to those who would use it for light and for various purposes.

The use of crystals is for gathering and focusing , not the creation of energy, but the gathering and focusing of available energy. And you already have sufficient understanding to begin the application of that – the reception and focusing of heat upon objects, intensifying that, reflecting it back and such - if there were simply the focus of purpose, the philosophy of accepting energy without destruction rather than the seeking of means to release energy through destruction.

The crystal had many properties, including the ability to bridge the hemispheres of the brain, giving an integrated mind which had abilities of channeling from the Records* about the earth and from the mind of the Divine.

These instruments later replaced by the Ark of the Covenant which was a similar, but not the same instrument. The crystals then being separated and became the stones of the breastplate of the high priest. This could be thought of as a lesser version of the crystals of Atlantis.

These crystals having both great properties as a great gift and the ability of some of those as discovered by some of those of the dark forces to be used as a weapon, that which was focused to such a high degree that it caused some of the destruction of Atlantis. There is a danger of the reawakening of that energy today with the nuclear force being a force of destruction, a source of earthquake and volcanic activity which can be a danger both to these islands (Japan) and to Jerusalem.
